Set amidst 24 hectares of almond groves and vineyards, 3,000 feet above sea level on the south facing slope of the Contraviesa, lies the splendid old and very special farm of La Jarilla, with spectacular views of the Sierra Nevada, the Mediterranean and occasionally Africa. Originally two houses with assorted stables and barns tacked on over the last 200 years, it now consists of the owners house and three cottages, two of the self catering cottages are attached and interconnecting when required. The reconstruction has been carried out in keeping with the old Spanish rustic style architecture giving the property a unique and warm character. All the doors, windows and bars were reclaimed from all corners of Andalucia and vary in age from 50 to 250 years. The property is secluded and totally...
